

Research Interests, May 2017

Kagan Dogruyol

My latest research focuses on sustainable heritage-led urban regeneration planning. The research is emphasised on development of a sustainable planning framework that will be extracted from literature, best practice examples, EU policy, Interviews with local stakeholders and questionnaire survey. Famagusta walled city will be the main case study of the research. The framework will help to overcome lack of knowledge in heritage led urban regeneration planning activities and enhance sustainability and quality of life in the built environment. The research aims to develop an ICT based heritage led urban regeneration framework for governmental bodies who have authority over urban development and heritage conservation by involving community perception to aid sustainable planning and decision making process.